COLOMBIAN INVENTS NOVEL GLIDER

One of the queerest objects to be dubbed a boat is the Yolanda II, a low-flying, racing craft, which promises to bring about a change in inland water traffic as Robert Fulton's Clermont did in 1807, when she made her way up the Hudson river without sails. The boat, which is a development of the hydroplane idea, is the invention of Gonzalo Mejia (shown above), a Colombian banker, who has the contract to carry mails for the Colombian government up the Magdalena river, Colombia. When not in motion, the Yolanda II draws five inches of water, but as soon as the big retractors whir the boat glides over the surface with an inch or less of draught, at a maximum speed of 50 miles an hour.

Some men's ideas of preparing themselves to drive an automobile safely back to town is to line up at roadside for a string of highballs.

FAMILY AVOIDS SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With Theford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whitaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble."

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Theford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught.

Theford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.

Your druggist sells and recommends Black-Draught. Price only 25c. Get a package to-day.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

If sin has not overwhelmed you, Admiration within you abides. Then hold the mantle of your love 'O'er him the world derides.

Do not try to do efficient work in an inefficient house. First transform your conditions.

GOOD THINGS.

Here is an old and well-tried sponge cake that will be liked by those who possess ten eggs to try it:

Great Grandmother's Sponge Cake.—To the beaten yolks of ten eggs add a pint of granulated sugar; beat until very light; then add a cupful of cold water and a pint of sifted flour, one-half a lemon, juice and rind; beat thoroughly together and then carefully fold in the stiffly beaten white. Pour into a deep pan and bake in a moderate oven.

October is the time to buy canned goods for winter as the canning season is over. The price per can is considerably less when purchased in quantity and your dealer will be glad to take your order. Never buy cans that have bulged, as this shows the contents to be fermenting, or do not buy cans that have been resoldered, showing that they have worked and been recooked.

When using canned goods the entire contents of the can should be turned out at once, as any of the food exposed to the air in the tin causes decomposition and makes the food unwholesome. Most of the cases of ptomaine poisoning are caused by lack of attending to this important duty.

Snowball Pudding.—Beat the yolks of three eggs until light, then add gradually one cupful of granulated sugar, beating all the while. When light, add two tablespoonfuls of milk, one cupful of flour, sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Fill battered cups two-thirds full and steam 20 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar and serve with foamy fruit sauce.

Foamy Fruit Sauce.—Put three tablespoonfuls of any jam or marmalade into a saucepan, add the juice of a lemon, and a cup of boiling water. Bring to the boiling point, sweeten to taste, add a tablespoonful each of four and butter, boil until smooth, then fold in the beaten white of an egg. Serve at once.

It seems strange that some people will keep on speaking of "useless army posts," when the money distributed through them helps the Congressmen from those districts to get re-elected.

In case an invading army should land on our shores, it would not be sufficient defense to have the school children come out and sing "Kind words will never die."

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

A Queer Mix-Up.

A curious mix-up, which has produced friction in the President's cabinet, doubtless has hampered the government's efforts to apprehend and punish those conspirators who have been engaged in efforts to blow up American and other ships carrying munitions of war and which, if Congress does its duty, may develop into a scandal of proportions, has come to light following the arrest by the Secret Service of Robert Fay and his associates. The Secret Service is, of course, the proper corps to deal with offenses of this kind, but it develops that the "Trust Busters" attached to the Department of Justice, under the supervision of A. Bruce Bielaski, have been doing most of this character of work, although in announcements to the public it has been stated that it was being done by the State Department. Fay and his associates, however, were first arrested by the New York police, with which department William J. Flynn, head of the Secret Service, was formerly connected. The New York police turned Fay et al. over to Flynn and he promptly employed an extra force of men to run down the other conspirators and the "men higher up."

Although the Secret Service is in the Treasury Department, Secretary McAdoo objected. So did Bielaski and Attorney General Gregory. There began to circulate ugly stories of efforts by the administration to shield certain of its friends who were among the "higher ups." Flynn pursued his work and there arose a question as to where he procured the funds to carry it on. Then it was discovered that the Secretary of War, who, apparently, distrusts the work of Bielaski and his subordinates, had found some funds which he had placed at the disposal of Flynn. It is understood that Mr. McAdoo has now ordered Flynn to abandon the task, while Attorney General Gregory has appointed to the States to carry on the task on the ground that the Federal laws are inadequate. The real facts may never be disclosed, in view of the powerful influences being exerted to suppress them, but if they are it will result in a mighty scandal, altogether too close to the head of the administration to be comfortable. Congress should put Secretary Garrison on the stand.

"Perk" Perkins.

George W. Perkins, "Perk," as he is affectionately called by his intimates is going up and down the land trying to "perk" up the Progressives and declaring that Missouri and other States will certainly put a presidential ticket in the field. Evidently Mr. Perkins does not face with equanimity the sad prospect of being a leader with no one to lead. His pronouncements regarding a Progressive presidential candidate, etc., fall rather flat in view of the unanimity with which the Progressives have decided to return to the faith of their fathers. Missouri itself shows striking evidence of this. In 1912 Missouri gave Mr. Roosevelt 124,000 votes. Last year the largest Progressive vote cast in the State was for Senator. It numbered 27,000.

President Wilson's State shows strikingly the passing of the Progressives. In 1912 that party cast 145,410 votes in New Jersey; in 1914 it cast 21,236, and in 1915 it cast 6,903. Neither can Mr. Perkins find much comfort in the showing of his party in Massachusetts. In that State the Progressives cast 127,000 votes in 1913, a total of 32,000 in 1914, and only 7,000 in 1915. The Progressive party may put a presidential ticket in the field but it looks now as if the nominee must be George W. Perkins, the nominee George W. Perkins and the main voter for the nominee George W. Perkins.

Diplomacy and Gowns.

The old rhyme has it that "When a man marries his troubles begin," but in the case of those in high estate the trouble seems to begin beforehand. Such, at least, is the experience of the Hon. Woodrow Wilson. The efforts of his fiancée, Mrs. Galt, to procure her wedding trousseau in Paris have actually led to diplomatic complications. The French government has asked the French embassy here to investigate the report of Charles Kurzman that the syndicate of Paris dressmakers and modistes has refused to fill his orders for gowns for Mrs. Galt because he is a German. The American representative insists that it is not because Kurzman was a German that the syndicate refused to fill the order, but for other reasons, and he has written Mrs. Galt offering to furnish her gowns without cost. Hardly less indignant than the syndicate of Frenchmen over what it claims is Kurzman's misrepresentation are the United States dressmakers who resent the implication that they could not have furnished finery of sufficient magnificence and beauty for the President's bride and that she was, therefore, compelled to send to France for it, even in war times.

An Unfit Senator.

"Farmer Jim" Martine, United States Senator from New Jersey, has come bluntly into the open and proved his own unfitness to be Senator. Senator Martine, apparently forgetting that the power of speech could not make him, has expressed to newspaper interviewers his great surprise that President Wilson should have conferred with Governor Fielder and State Chairman Grosvenor for the purpose of picking a Senator to succeed him. Mr. Martine, because, as he naively explains, the New Jersey primary law provides that the voters shall select the candidate. "This law was passed in Mr. Wilson's administration as Governor," says the injured Mr. Martine, "and he was looked upon as abolishing the old boss system of selecting candidates." Of course, it was so looked upon by the people—and that was the intention of Governor Wilson, for whom the law was made. But that was not the intention of Mr. Wilson, then or now, and the fact that Mr. Martine has been closely associated with Mr. Wilson, during his term as Governor and later as President, without realizing that it is only the Republicans who have bosses, while the Democrats are "statesmen," and the further fact that Mr. Wilson has as much contempt for popular rule now as he had when he was Governor of New Jersey, conclusively mark Mr. Martine as a man of too dull perceptions to serve his party usefully in the United States Senate. Mr. Martine so completely fails to understand the Wilson system of dictatorial "leadership" that it is no wonder that Mr. Wilson summoned the New Jersey party "leaders" to select another man for Mr. Martine's shoes.

Daniels, Discipline and Democracy.

"Aside from giving us ships and men we must get action from Congress that will let the navy conduct its own affairs. The reason that we are so inadequately prepared is that the navy has been the 'ham bone' of the politicians." These were the expressions of Commander Yates Stirling, U. S. N., before certain patriotic societies in Philadelphia. Secretary Daniels had not yet seen an authenticated report of Commander Stirling's remarks, to-day, so it is still impossible to announce when the commander's trial by court-martial will take place. Commander Stirling may not have been thinking of Secretary Daniels, but he could not have shot straighter if he had been. The very day these remarks were delivered Mr. Daniels had set aside the finding of a court-martial, the members of which court he had himself chosen, because their finding was not in accordance with his preconceived ideas. Of the effect on the discipline of the navy of Secretary Daniels' course any intelligent citizen can judge. Of the infinite number of instances where Mr. Daniels has thrown discipline to the winds and guided his course solely by the principle of political expediency, and the furtherance of his own political ambitions, or of the extent of his contribution to the inefficiency of the ships and men and his responsibility for the extravagance of administration, the voters probably will never know. These things are known to naval officers and the President, but the former dare not tell and the President does not care to because he regards Mr. Daniels as useful in retaining the loyalty of the Bryan wing of the Democracy.

REPUBLICANS MEET IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, November 30.—Prominent Republicans from many States are here today for the meeting of the National Republican Union, which will be permanently organized for a campaign to revise the basis of representation in Republican National Conventions. Rorace C. Stilwell, of Indiana, is chairman of the Union.

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY.

November 30.

Winston Spencer Churchill, the brilliant young English statesman, who recently quit the cabinet for the army, is 41 years old today. Since the days of Pitt England has not developed such a precocious leader. And it is long since she had such a romantic, many-sided minister. When the storm of criticism of his conduct of the office of First Lord of the Admiralty broke over him a few weeks ago, Churchill was not caught napping. He slung puts it, and he paid back coin for coin the blame for adversity of British sea warfare that were laid to him. Then he spectacularly resigned from the cabinet and joined his regiment at the front in France. Churchill was born on November 30, 1874, the product of an Anglo-American union. His father was the late Lord Randolph Henry Spencer Churchill, and his mother was formerly Miss Jennie Jerome, daughter of the late Leonard Jerome, of New York, and a cousin of William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney of New York. Young Churchill was educated at Harrow and Sandhurst and entered the army. He longed for adventure, and so went to Cuba and joined the Spanish forces there, winning a decoration. Then he went to India and earned other medals. He became a war correspondent in the Egyptian campaign and later in South Africa. During the latter campaign he was taken prisoner, but escaped after six weeks. On his return he won a seat in Parliament. He was made Under Secretary of State for the Colonies in 1906, and two years later president of the Board of Trade. In 1910 he became Home Secretary. In 1911 he was called to the office of First Lord of the Admiralty, and the height of his career was reached when the breaking out of the European war last year found the British fleet prepared and gathered in the North sea. Later developments brought bitter criticism, particularly against the Dardanelles campaign which the British navy inaugurated and the dispatch of the disastrous expedition to Belgium. Churchill was blamed, whether rightly or wrongly, and when the coalition cabinet was formed last May, he was reduced to the chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster. But his adventurous nature would not permit of inactivity or the poignancy of his critics, and so he is a soldier again. Andreas Dippel, famous tenor and operatic manager, who recently became a naturalized American citizen, 49 years old today.

Hon. William L. LaFollette, Congressman from Washington, 53 years old today.

Dr. Frederick W. Mally, crop and irrigation expert of Texas, 47 years old today.

Lord Clanricarde, the Irish landlord who recently lost his long battle against the land law, 83 years old today.

About this time of year the national game is not baseball or poker but a good, old-fashioned Thanksgiving indigestion.
